AMERICA AND CHINA WE omit other matter prepared for these columns in order to make room for an extract which having just come to hand by the P. M. steamer possesses an unusual interest for the public, the text of the "new Treaty with China," as the American papers name it. The so calle Treaty, or Addendum to the existing treaty, is a curious document, and will doubtless be of much interest to archeologists in the year 2868 A.D. when China shall have become the France of Eastern Asia, as Japan is supposed to be its fu ture Great Britain. But there is little to be said about the production and we abstain from saying even that little to afford room for the text; which is as fol

China, being of the opinion that in making concessions to the citizens or subjects of soreign powers, of the privilege of residing on certain tracts of land, or resorting to certain waters of the Empire for purposes of trade, he has by no means relinquished his right of eminent domain or dominion over the said land and waters, hereby agrees that no such concession or grant shall be construed to give to any Power or party which may be at war with or hostile to the United States the right to attack the citizens of the United States or their property within the said lands or waters; and the United States, for themselves, hereby agree to abstain from offensively attacking the citizens or subjects of any Power or party. or their property, with which they may be at war, on any such tract of land or waters of the said Empire; but nothing in this article shall be construed to prevent the United States from resisting an attack from any hostile Power or party upon their citizens or their property. It is further agreed that if any right or interest, in any tract of land in China has been or shall hereafter be granted by the Government of China to the United States or their citizens for purposes of trade or commerce, that grant shall in no event be construed to divest the Chinese authorities of their right of jurisdiction over persons and property within said tract of land, except so far as

The high contracting parties, therefore, join in reprobating any other than an entirely voluntary emigration for these purposes. They consequently agree to pass laws making it a penal offence for a citizen of the United States to take Chinese Subjects either to the United States or to any other foreign country, or for a Chinese subject to take citizens of the United States to China or to any other foreign country, without their free and vo-

HOLLOWAYS OINTMENT. The science of Medicine has never before produced any remedy that can be compared to this wonderful Ointment, as it cares after all other means have failed, all wounds, sores, ulcers, and also the most inveterate skin diseases peculiar to the climates of India and Chius.
